

MARKET FITNESS

Liability Release Form

I, the undersigned participant in this fitness workshop, as a condition of my participation, hereby waive any and all claims I may have now or in the future against my instructor, Christian Nagler, Market Fitness, this institution and its owners, employees and trustees, in connection with or arising out of my participation in this workshop or any injury to myself related hereto.

I understand that any fitness workshop, any imbrication with physical or cognitive technologies, and any or all knowledge or ignorance of market dynamics and the terminology therewith carries with it considerable risk and I acknowledge that risk. I understand that any attempt to use this knowledge or ignorance to make profit, resist ideological frames, organize for revolution, invest in bonds, equities, or derivatives, or exist moment to moment as a fleshly incarnation of the infolding of creature-life carries with it considerable risk and I acknowledge that risk. I acknowledge that my mere existence in a world in which the concept of “value” has been derived (perhaps sometime in the 4th century B.C.) from a unified field of being, or in a world in which the concept of “value” has perhaps always existed separate from the purported concentration of material implied in a unified field as an eternal manifestation of fundamental volatility carries with it considerable risk. I affirm that my presence in a world in which two metaphors, such as, firstly, the “pearl of great price” from the New Testament Matthew 13:44 in which it is written that Jesus said:

When a man found it, he hid it again, and then in his joy went and sold all he had and bought the field in which it lay.

and, secondly, the concept of liquidity as the price of immediacy of manifestations of value, can coexist, is a world in which I must acknowledge the presence of risk.

I have consulted with my Dr and she/he agrees that this workshop is appropriate for my current state of health and financial understanding/frustration.
